Throughout my 22 years of teaching, I have encountered many different educational environments, but the recovery section has provided particular difficulties for me in my current position. I have faced challenges over the last two years due to many pupils' delayed reading ability, persistent absenteeism, behavioral problems, and some parents' lack of cooperation. These challenges have put my flexibility and perseverance to the test, requiring the development of new techniques in order to effectively engage and support my pupils. In spite of these difficulties, I'm still dedicated to creating a supportive learning atmosphere and assisting each pupil in overcoming their unique obstacles. I use my wealth of knowledge to contribute significantly in this particular setting.

As a teacher of Edukasyon sa Pagpapakatao, I have acquired priceless knowledge about my pupils' conduct, which is essential for providing them with good guidance. I constantly remind my pupils that a good attitude is the best factor in attaining one's goal, the value of education in their lives, and how it is an invaluable asset that nobody can take away. When a pupil has frequent absences, I take a proactive approach by visiting their home to engage with both the pupils and their parents. I believe that every child deserves the chance to succeed and progress to their next grade level, so I am committed to offering as much support as possible. During these visits, I discuss the importance of regular attendance with the family, address any concerns they might have, and work together to find solutions that can help the pupil overcome barriers to consistent school participation. By providing this personalized attention and support, I aim to ensure that my pupil can catch up on missed work and ultimately achieve their academic goals.

Despite my commitment, I came to the realization that I still needed to learn more about handling behavioral challenges. I participated in several seminars that our division office offered, including an informative three-series on social and emotional learning. I have gained a deeper understanding of how to support and attend to our pupils' emotional and social needs because of these workshops. I have gained useful knowledge and doable tactics for creating a more encouraging and adaptable learning environment from these workshops. With this deeper comprehension, I can support my pupils more effectively and help them acquire the abilities necessary to succeed in both their academic and personal lives. I shared my learnings with my co-workers by being a resource speaker in our in-service training for teachers. I also took part in workshops hosted by our church, such as "Restoring Your Heart," which provided opportunities for both professional and personal development. I owe Dr. Mercedes Laguna a great deal for motivating me to join in the International Master's Diploma in Guidance and Counseling.

The International Master's Diploma in Guidance and Counseling program has influenced my life, and for that, I am incredibly grateful. I especially thank Dr. Shama, whose knowledge and commitment have been helpful. Her wisdom has given me a cutting-edge understanding and practical solutions for dealing with behavioral issues and other obstacles that teachers face regularly. I gained trendy, useful strategies from the program that have greatly improved my capacity to mentor and help my pupils and co-teachers. This increased knowledge and ability is turning out to be quite helpful in fostering a more encouraging and effective learning environment.
